INTRODUCTION

The 1940 edition of the Annual Report of Financial Transactions of Municipalities and Counties of California contains, in addition to the usual statements of cash received and expended by these subdivisions, the Federal Government population figures as of April 1, 1940. The total number of people in California on that date is shown as 6,907,387—an increase of 1,230,136 or 21.7 per cent in the past ten years. The Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, calls attention to the fact that the first California census was taken in incomplete form in 1850 with a total of 92,597, and that an increase has been shown during each succeeding census since that time, though the present rate of increase is the lowest in the State's history. From the same source, the population density is given as 44.1 inhabitants per square mile, and the State's land area as 156,803 square miles. Population for the State is further classified as 4,902,265 (71%) urban and 2,005,122 (29%) rural. The urban total represents the residents of incorporated areas of 2,500 or more and Belvedere township, population 37,192, which is considered urban under a special ruling of the Census Bureau for those sections with a total population of 10,000 or more and a population density of 1,000 or more per square mile; the rural total covers all unincorporated territory except Belvedere township.

All counties show an increase during the past 10 years except Colusa and Imperial counties. Shasta County made the greatest single percentage gain of 106.8, due undoubtedly to the present activity in the construction of Shasta Dam. Los Angeles County has the largest population total of 2,785,643, which represents 40.3 per cent of the entire State and an increase of 26 per cent during the past decade. San Francisco, with a population of 634,536, is second and the 10-year increase is less than 1 per cent. Alpine County with 323 has the least county population.

California now has six cities with populations in excess of 100,000: Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, San Diego, Long Beach and Sacramento; and 59 cities over 10,000 as compared with 47 in 1930. Los Angeles City represents 22 per cent of the State's population.

The county tabulations in the following report contain 57 counties, San Francisco which combines the functions of city and county having been classified as a city. The city tabulations cover 286 cities; Woodlake in Tulare County and Palos Verdes Estates in Los Angeles County were added within the past year and Pismo Beach in San Luis Obispo County and Bayshore in San Mateo County have discontinued. All cities are contained in this report except Hornitos in Mariposa County which for several years has been inactive.

The following tabulations are presented covering the five-year intervals from 1920 to date:

 Including City and County of San Francisco.

It is impossible to make fair and accurate comparisons between the rapidly increasing totals during the 20 years shown above. State receipts and payments, as has been stated in the introductions of previous annual reports, have increased in proportion to the additional school burdens assumed by the State and the number of new protective and benevolent functions developed through these years. The terrific burden of relief measures, utterly unknown in 1920, accounts for much of the increase. All new activities, though justified by needs and conditions, swell the expenditures and must be met by new methods of taxation—sales tax, income tax, increased rates on inheritance taxes, gasoline taxes, etc.

In the county tabulations, likewise, comparisons are difficult for even the property valuations have been differently computed. Prior to 1935 county assessment of property was not uniform throughout the State, each county showing a different ratio between true and assessed values. The individual county valuations making the totals shown above for 1935 and 1940 assessments, however, have been carefully equalized by the State Board of Equalization in order that they may all conform to a like ratio. County receipts and payments contain large sums of Federal and State moneys received as grants for building projects, schools, social welfare purposes and highway maintenance and construction. Much of this money is also carried in the State payments and a duplication exists to that extent. The bonded debt for both the State and the counties has decreased since 1935 indicating that a pay-as-you-go program is being effectively followed.

Since 1920, 32 new cities have incorporated and municipally owned utilities have increased. There are now 58 more cities operating water plants than in 1920—many of them advantageously in so far as city revenues and services are concerned but they nevertheless increase the cash totals for city receipts and payments. Federal and county grants are included in these totals also, although the scope of municipal activities has not materially broadened during the past 20 years. Property valuations since 1920 have increased 117 per cent while the bonded debt has more than doubled this percentage, being 252 per cent. A considerable part of this debt includes bonds for utility purposes, the interest and principal of which are paid from utility revenues.
